Why it matters

The core “how to accept Bitcoin” wallet guide — it categorizes recommended merchant wallets by business type (sole operator, multi-employee, online, invoice-based) and explains the Bitcoin-only vs. hybrid (auto-convert) distinction. This is the page a JC Bitcoin merchant actually picks a tool from.

HOW TO ACCEPT BITCOIN PAYMENTS

Bitcoin wallets are free. Pick one that fits your business — in-person, online, or invoice-based — and start accepting Bitcoin in minutes.

All Bitcoin wallets are interoperable, so your customers can pay you in Bitcoin no matter which wallet they use.

Bitcoin-only wallets: These are pure Bitcoin wallets that unlock the full benefits of Bitcoin: no middlemen, low fees, and no chargebacks or fraud.

Hybrid wallets: These allow you to exchange any portion of your Bitcoin for dollars as soon as a customer pays you. Fees are still less than credit card payments, but higher than pure Bitcoin payments.

Both are great ways to accept Bitcoin. The specific wallet you use will depend on the size and type of your business.

Wallets for individually-owned businesses

If you run a shop, café, studio, or service on your own, any of these wallets will work. Pick based on whether you want to keep payments in Bitcoin or auto-convert part of each payment to your local currency.
