FAQS FOR ACCEPTING BITCOIN

The short answers to the questions merchants ask most often before they start accepting Bitcoin — fees, settlement, wallets, chargebacks, cost, and more.

Tap any question below to expand the answer. When you're ready to start accepting Bitcoin, the business resources at the bottom of the page will walk you through each step.

What is Bitcoin?

Bitcoin is two things: digital money and a computer network.

You can send bitcoin (the digital money) directly to other people using the Bitcoin Network.

The Bitcoin Network is able to operate without middlemen or central authorities, like banks or credit card companies, so you can avoid their transaction fees.

Bitcoin transactions achieve final settlement quickly (10 minutes) and can never be charged back, so you can sleep easy knowing your money is your money.

How can Bitcoin benefit my business?

Bitcoin allows you to accept payments with lower fees and get more customers. Bitcoin payments have low fees with no minimums, settle instantly, and are immune to chargebacks and fraud.

Accepting Bitcoin is free and allows you to list your business on Bitcoin merchant maps so Bitcoin users can easily find your business.
